

10. Social, Emotional and Mental Health (SEMH) Difficulties

Part 1 – Introduction and Overview

Children can have social, emotional and mental health difficulties at any stage in their development and these can be linked to a specific event in their lives (e.g. bereavement, trauma, illness, family stresses, being bullied). Some can be linked to longer term issues such as learning problems, difficulties with social skills, prolonged family disruption or medical conditions such as Autism Spectrum Condition (ASC) or Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD). The presenting problems, therefore, can vary in intensity, frequency and duration. They may range from changes in emotional resilience (such as withdrawal or anxiety about attending school/setting) to expressions of underlying stress (such as tearfulness, refusal to engage with learning, self-harming) or more overtly challenging behaviour (such as aggression, defiance, anti-social acts).

All children and young people should be educated in an environment which is attuned to their social and emotional needs and taught the skills which underpin wellbeing and engagement with learning. All people who work with and care for children will have an understanding that environmental and relationship issues can and do impact on social emotional and mental health.

The key areas are:

- An inclusive whole school/setting ethos which is communicated to parents and the wider community.
- A positive focus on attendance.
- A positive behaviour for learning policy which is differentiated to meet the needs of all pupils and dovetails with other policies e.g. anti-bullying.
- A classroom and playground environment which focuses on positive relationships and the development of social skills.
- The provision of planned opportunities for children and young people to learn social and emotional skills.
- The recognition that some children and young people may experience short term difficulties managing their emotions and behaviour.
- Strategies should be employed to ensure that the child or young person's voice is taken into account in planning and delivery.

The child or young person's strengths should be identified as well as areas of additional need. Observations, ongoing structured assessments and a plan-do-review approach will be important and adopting a solution-focussed approach which builds on the child or young person's strengths, will be beneficial.

Many children and young people will thrive in a nurturing and supportive school/setting environment but some will require more targeted or specialist support.

It is acknowledged that social, emotional and mental health needs cover a huge range of feelings and behaviours, and that no child or young person will meet all of the band descriptors at any of the levels described below. In applying the band descriptors, it is necessary to focus on the bullet points which do apply to the particular CYP, and consider which level best fits their needs.

Part 2: Band Descriptors

Band 1 (Mild SEND)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Child or young person will have been identified as presenting with some low level features of social, emotional and/or mental health difficulties and there has been no significant measured change in the target behaviour/social skill despite quality first teaching and individualised interventions being in place. • They may sometimes appear isolated or have immature social skills. • Child or young person may have become socially and emotionally vulnerable, withdrawn, and unpredictable patterns of behaviour that impact on learning may be beginning to emerge. • They may be occasionally disruptive in the classroom setting, be overactive and lack concentration. • SEMH needs interfere with child or young person's social/learning development across a range of settings and child or young person does not follow routines in school/setting consistently. • They may show signs of stress and anxiety and/or difficulties managing emotions on occasions: this might relate to specific circumstances or times of the day. • Child or young person may have a preference for their own agenda and be reluctant to follow instructions. • Child or young person may have begun to experience short term behavioural or emotional crises.
Band 2 (Moderate SEND)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Difficulties identified at Band 1 continue/worsen and there has been no significant measured change in the target behaviour/social skill despite quality first teaching and Band 1 interventions being in place. • SEMH needs interfere more frequently with the child or young person's social/learning development across a range of settings and child or young person does not follow routines in school/setting without adult support. • The child or young person remains socially and emotionally vulnerable, withdrawn, isolated, and susceptible to unpredictable patterns of behaviour that impact on learning. • The child or young person's patterns of stress/anxiety occur with more frequency and duration. • The child or young person may have a preference for own agenda and may be reluctant to follow instructions. • Short-term behavioural crises have become more frequent and are more intense. • Child or young person may be at risk of fixed term exclusion and have more sustained difficulties in social interactions/relationships with both adults and peers and difficulties managing a range of emotions.

Band 3 (Severe SEND)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Child or young person presents with severe and persistent levels of social, emotional and/or mental health difficulties which are now more complex and which may necessitate a multi-agency response. • Child or young person is more likely to have experienced fixed term exclusion (s). • Significant and increasing difficulties with social interaction, social communication, social understanding or emotional regulation which regularly impact on classroom performance and may require adult support for a proportion of the school day. • Child or young person is increasingly isolated and struggles to maintain positive relationships with adults and/or peers. • Careful social and emotional differentiation of the curriculum is essential to ensure access to the curriculum and progress with learning.
Band 4 (More Severe SEND)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The child or young person has significant and increasing social, emotional and/or mental health difficulties, often compounded by additional needs. • The child or young person experiences barriers to accessing the curriculum as a result of social, emotional and/or mental health issues, for example, acute anxiety or attachment issues. • There are patterns of regular school/setting absence. • The child or young person is disengaged from learning and shows significant under-performance. • They use verbal and physical aggression. • They are reliant on adult support to remain on task. • The child or young person engages in high risk taking activities both at school/setting and within the community. • They show difficulties expressing empathy, may seem emotionally detached, could have a tendency to hurt others, self or animals. • There are issues around identity and belonging. • The child or young person needs to be in control or uses bullying behaviours. • They may have difficulties sustaining relationships. • They may be over-friendly or withdrawn with strangers, at risk of exploitation. • The child or young person may be provocative, there may be evidence of sexualised language or behaviours. • They may be slow to develop age appropriate self-care skills due to immaturity or degree of learning difficulties. • The child or young person may have physical, sensory and medical needs that require medication and regular review.

Band 5 (Profound SEND)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The child or young person shows continuing significant and increasing social, emotional, mental health and/or behavioural difficulties, often compounded by additional needs. • They use significant challenging behaviour requiring a range of interventions or referral to specialist support services. • The child or young person may be unable to manage themselves in groups without dedicated support. • They may be subject to neglect, basic needs may be unmet or they may experience hunger, illness, lack of sleep, acute anxiety, fear, isolation, bullying, harassment, controlling behaviours which impact on their learning. • The child or young person may be involved in substance misuse either as a user or exploited into distribution/selling. • They have poor attendance and/or may require high level of adult intervention to bring into school/setting, even with transport provided. • They may refuse to engage, may be extremely abusive towards staff and peers, disengaged or disruptive. • They may damage property. • The child or young person may require targeted teaching in order to access learning in dedicated space away from others. • They may pose a health and safety risk to self and others due to increased levels of agitation and presenting risks. • They may use sexualised language and behaviour, identified at risk of Child Sexual Exploitation (CSE). • There may be medical conditions, such as epilepsy, ADHD or Conduct Disorder that may require specialist support.
Band 6 (Exceptional SEND)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The child or young person may experience continued long term and complex social, emotional and mental health difficulties, necessitating a continued multi-agency response and/or continuation of specialist provision. Their needs are likely to include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ Self-harming behaviour/self-injury. ○ Attempted suicide. ○ Persistent substance abuse. ○ Extreme sexualised language and behaviour; may be at risk of CSE. ○ Extreme violent/aggressive behaviour. ○ Serious mental health issues. ○ Long term non-attendance and disaffection. ○ Appearance in court for anti-social behaviour/criminal activity. ○ Putting self and others in danger. ○ Being frequently missing for long periods. ○ Extreme vulnerability.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ May have medical conditions that are potentially life threatening and cannot be managed without dedicated support.
